PRIVACY POLICY
GDPR

The website https://yourlox.com/, hereinafter referred to as yourlox.com, respects the privacy of every visitor to our website. The following information concerns the type of data collected by the website yourlox.com and the ways it is used.

Yourlox.com collects, processes, and uses personal data in accordance with the relevant legislation of the Slovak Republic. This privacy policy statement does not apply to the websites of other operators accessible through links on the website yourlox.com.

The website yourlox.com collects only those personal data for which the user gives voluntary consent to process and use. By expressing consent, the user also agrees to the following conditions for processing personal data:

By opening these websites, certain data is automatically stored on our servers for system administration or for statistical and support purposes. This data includes the name of your internet service provider, your Internet Protocol (IP) address, the software version of your browser, the computer operating system you use to access our website, and the website you use to open our website. This data may be used to understand the profile of users of our website, but always without using any data relating to a specific person. Such data will only be used if provided anonymously.

If you voluntarily provide us with personal data through one of the contact forms on the website yourlox.com, the subpages you visited before filling out the form will be recorded on our server, and in some cases, the page you visited immediately before arriving at the website yourlox.com. We will not use, process, or transfer such data to a third party beyond the limits set by legal regulations or beyond the scope specified in your consent statement. We will provide your personal data exclusively if compelled to do so by a court decision or other public authority decision. Any changes regarding these privacy conditions will be published on these websites.

The website yourlox.com will keep your data safe and take all reasonable available precautionary measures to secure data against loss, misuse, or alteration. In some cases, we use third-party applications to process data that use the same or higher standard for personal data protection as described in this document.

This website collects and stores data for marketing and optimization purposes to improve the website. Cookies may be set in your browser. Without the explicit consent of our users, the data collected using Google Analytics (and others) technology will not be used to identify a specific visitor and is not collected together with other personal data of a pseudonym holder.

You can deactivate cookies in your browser or use one of the extensions designed to block specific cookies.
